[- Trojan Hacking Group In Association With Nark0manina Presents -]
Troyan's Web Page HACKED

I'm back niggaz better than ever t0 0wn j00

WEBMASTER: You'll receive an e-mail these days with the password for the site. Let's wait so more people will see it haha
Your old index.html is renamed to index666.html don't worry NO files are deleted.

More Hacks Of Troyan Pages Coming These Days Because The Passwords Are Let's Say:hacker,troyan,enkin etc. etc.
I'm Fucking With These Pages Only Because Of Nark0manina's Wish And As I Said Because Of The Weak Passwords.

Author Notes:

I hope you like my texts and find them useful.
If you have any problem or some suggestion feel free to e-mail me but please don't send mails like
"I want to hack the US government please help me" or "Tell me how to blind a trojan into a .jpg"
"Where can I get a portscanner" etc.......
Be sure if I can help you with something I will do it.
I've started writing security related tutorials and I hope you like that.I'll try to cover much more topics in my future texts and I want to thank to all of the people that like my

КИБЕРТЕРОРИЗМЪТ

ДОКОЛКО РЕАЛЕН Е ПРОБЛЕМЪТ?

ИНФОРМАЦИОННАТА ИКОНОМИКА, в която светът навлезе през последните 20 години, благоприятства развитието на модерните средства за комуникация, разбивайки междуконтиненталните и етнически граници, придавайки нови измерения на понятието информационно общество, а може би точното понятие е информационно-зависимо общество!

Тази статия се стреми да разгледа проблема за информационната война и кибертероризма, който неизменно я съпътства, от различни гледни точки. Тя ще отговори на следните въпроси – какво е кибертероризъм и каква е разликата между него и информационната война? Могат ли действията на информационната война и е кибертероризъм да предизвикат човешки жертви или икономически хаос и какви са възможните сценарии?

It's me again.This is our second issue.I've changed the design and I've added several new things in the newsletter.
I've also received a lot of e-mails about our magazine.
People like it and they want more information here.
The first issue was short one but of course every new issue has many new things added in it.
I'm happy people like it and we have MANY new subcribers every day.
Also we have much more visitors than before.

Cybercrime service automates creation of fake scanned IDs, other verification docs

The service produces high-quality fake scans that can be used in fraud attacks to impersonate victims, Group-IB researchers said

By Lucian Constantin
Romania Correspondent, CSO
AUG 27, 2013 8:00 AM PT

A new Web-based service for cybercriminals automates the creation of fake scanned documents that can help fraudsters bypass the identity verification processes used by some banks, e-commerce businesses and other online services providers, according to researchers from Russian cybercrime investigations firm Group-IB.

The service can generate scanned copies of passports, ID cards and driver's licenses from different countries for identities supplied by the service users, fake scanned utility bills from various companies, as well as fake scanned copies of banking statements and credit cards issued by a large number of banks, said Andrey Komarov, head of international projects at Group-IB, via email.

It is common practice for banks, payment and money transfer providers, online gambling sites and other types of businesses that engage in money transactions via the Internet to ask their customers for scanned copies of documents in order to prove their identities or verify their physical addresses, especially when their anti-fraud departments detect suspicious account activity.

Fake CNN Alert Still Spreading Malware

By Gregg Keizer
Computerworld
AUG 8, 2008 11:24 AM PT

The massive attack that has infected PCs by tricking users into clicking links in fake messages from CNN.com shows little sign of ending soon, security researchers say.

According to MX Logic Inc. , spam posing as CNN.com Top 10 lists peaked at close to 11 million messages per hour early Thursday, but remained at high volumes throughout the day Friday. The Colorado security vendor said it had been tracking an average of 8 million messages per hour since midnight.

MX Logic's vice president of information security, Sam Masiello , called the trend "a very slow, but steady decline" from the 11 a.m. Mountain Time peak the day before.

[Further reading: How the new age of antivirus software will protect your PC]

Masiello also said that the spam has changed since attacks were first launched on Tuesday. "We've also seen several morphs of this spam over the past couple of days," he said in an entry posted on the MX Logic blog Friday . Where the messages once trumpeted " CNN .com Daily Top 10" in the subject heading and linked to a single filename on malware-hosting sites, now the spam sports a subject reading "CNN Alerts: My Custom Alert" and uses a variety of filenames in the malicious URL.

Customizable Mobile Number Harvesting Service Found on Underground Market

The information can be used for SMS spam campaigns

WORLD of TANKS
PLAY FOR FREE

Jul 4, 2013 13:51 GMT · By Eduard Kovacs · Share:

Security experts have come across a new mobile number harvesting service that allows users to fully customize the type of information they want to collect. The collected information can then be utilized to drive SMS spam campaigns that rely on specialized services.

Identified by Webroot's Dancho Danchev in the underground market, the mobile number harvesting service can be used to collect information based on region, types of companies, age, interests, work position, gender and other options.

According to the service's operators, it takes up to 12 hours to harvest between 1,000 and 35,000 phone numbers, and it takes between 72 and 86 hours if the customer wants over 50,000 numbers based on certain criteria.

The individuals that advertise the service accept payment via WebMoney, which shows that experts might have been right when they said that cybercriminals might slowly migrate back to WebMoney now that Liberty Reserve was out of the picture.

"We expect to continue observing an increase in vendors offering cybercrime-as-a-service solutions with vertical market integration in mind, in an attempt by the cybercriminals operating them to occupy an even bigger market share within the TDoS and the SMS spam market segments," Danchev explained.

Spammers unleash DIY phone number slurping web tool

Well it is Valentine's Day... How else are you going to get those digits?

By John Leyden 14 Feb 2013 at 17:03

SHARE ▼

Mobile spammers have released a DIY phone number harvesting tool, but instead of advertising it solely on criminals-only online hangouts, they're trying to flog it out in the open.

The availability of the utility turns the simple act of submitting a mobile number to a website something that might lead to the receipt of more SMS (text message) spam.

A new version of the phone number harvesting tool crawls the web and indexes mobile numbers, phone ID numbers, the names of the owner, and the associated mobile operator - among other information. Users of the tool can choose which country they want to target.

The harvested information is later used for various malicious and fraudulent purposes.

Key features of the tool include automatic recognition of Russian and Ukrainian mobile phone providers (based on its initial target market), indexing based on a region and city for both Russia and Ukraine, multi-threaded software allowing up to 100 "indexing streams", as well as an option to collect only numbers attached to a particular mobile provider.

"Cybercriminals and spammers are not strangers to the concept of market segmentation," explained Dancho Danchev, a security researcher at Webroot, in a blog post.

"Just like true marketers, the developer of the tool has included the option to choose a specific region within the available countries, with the idea to assist in the inevitable malicious and fraudulent activity that will result from this phone number harvesting activity."

Danchev advises surfers to double check whether any website that requests your phone number is actually listing it on the web. The phone number harvesting tool has yet to crawl through sites that require authorisation or spread outside Russia and the Ukraine, he said, but future versions are likely to expanding indexing capabilities and geographical reach, Danchev warned.

Mass website hacking tool alerts to dangers of Google dorks

Google dorks are not geeks who love the internet-related services and products provider. Google dorks are akin to super-specific searches, which attackers have been known to take advantage of in attempts to expose vulnerable websites.

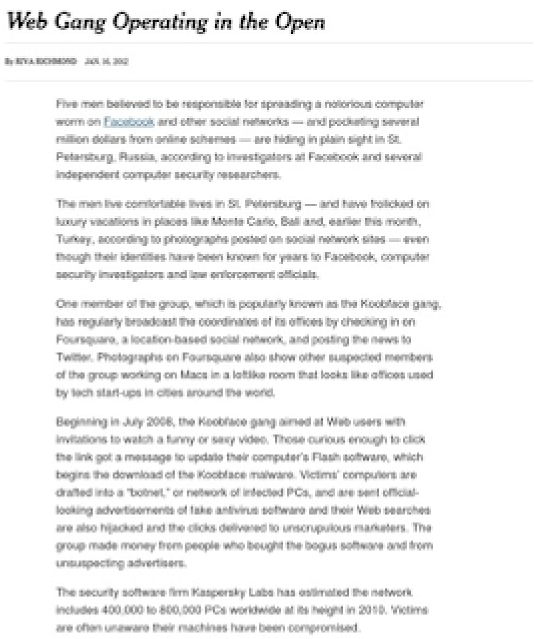
Cyber crime researcher Dancho Danchev recently blogged about a mass, do-it-yourself (DIY) website-hacking tool making the rounds that takes advantage of those Google dorks.

"The proxy supporting tool has been purposely designed to allow automatic mass websites reconnaissance for the purpose of launching SQL injection attacks against those websites that are vulnerable," Danchev wrote.

SQL stands for structured query language and is programming terminology designed for managing data. SQL injection typically involves an attacker inputting SQL statements into an entry field that will force the system to execute potentially malicious commands.

"Once a compromise takes place, the attacker is in a perfect position to inject malicious scripts on the affected sites, potentially exposing their users to malicious client-side exploits serving attacks," according to Danchev.

Danchev wrote that an escalating number of DIY tools circulating the internet may open the door for novice attackers, but Barry Shteiman, director of security strategy with Imperva, told SCMagazine.com on Tuesday that it is the Google dorks that should be raising alarms.



Web Gang Operating in the Open

By RIVA RICHMOND JAN. 16, 2012

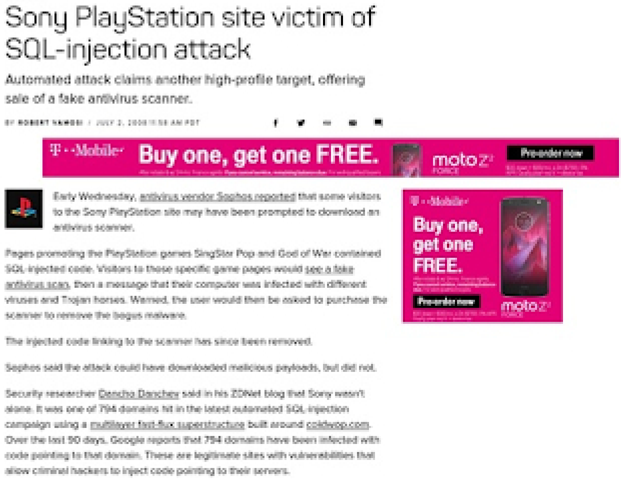
Five men believed to be responsible for spreading a notorious computer worm on Facebook and other social networks — and pocketing several million dollars from online schemes — are hiding in plain sight in St. Petersburg, Russia, according to investigators at Facebook and several independent computer security researchers.

The men live comfortable lives in St. Petersburg — and have frolicked on luxury vacations in places like Monte Carlo, Bali and, earlier this month, Turkey, according to photographs posted on social network sites — even though their identities have been known for years to Facebook, computer security investigators and law enforcement officials.

One member of the group, which is popularly known as the Koobface gang, has regularly broadcast the coordinates of its offices by checking in on Foursquare, a location-based social network, and posting the news to Twitter. Photographs on Foursquare also show other suspected members of the group working on Macs in a loftlike room that looks like offices used by tech start-ups in cities around the world.

Beginning in July 2008, the Koobface gang aimed at Web users with invitations to watch a funny or sexy video. Those curious enough to click the link got a message to update their computer's Flash software, which begins the download of the Koobface malware. Victims' computers are drafted into a "botnet," or network of infected PCs, and are sent official-looking advertisements of fake antivirus software and their Web searches are also hijacked and the clicks delivered to unscrupulous marketers. The group made money from people who bought the bogus software and from unsuspecting advertisers.

The security software firm Kaspersky Labs has estimated the network includes 400,000 to 800,000 PCs worldwide at its height in 2010. Victims are often unaware their machines have been compromised.



Sony PlayStation site victim of SQL-injection attack

Automated attack claims another high-profile target, offering sale of a fake antivirus scanner.

Early Wednesday, antivirus vendor Sophos reported that some visitors to the Sony PlayStation site may have been prompted to download an antivirus scanner.

Pages promoting the PlayStation games SingStar Pop and God of War contained SQL-injected code. Visitors to these specific game pages would see a fake antivirus scan, then a message that their computer was infected with different viruses and Trojan horses. Warned, the user would then be asked to purchase the scanner to remove the bogus malware.

The injected code linking to the scanner has since been removed.

Sophos said the attack could have downloaded malicious payloads, but did not.

Security researcher Dancho Danchev said in his ZDNet blog that Sony wasn't alone. It was one of 794 domains hit in the latest automated SQL-injection campaign using a multilayer fast-flux superstructure built around coldwop.com. Over the last 90 days, Google reports that 794 domains have been infected with code pointing to that domain. These are legitimate sites with vulnerabilities that allow criminal hackers to inject code pointing to their servers.

Crimeware gets worse - How to avoid being robbed by your PC

The malware threat to Windows computers continues to get worse. So much so, there's a new term to describe malicious software that transfers money from online accounts at financial services companies - crimeware.

Last week, an article at Technology Review told about a construction firm that had $447,000 taken out of their bank account by crimeware software on one of their computers. What makes this story particularly interesting is that the unnamed bank employed one time passwords.

Perhaps you've seen the small key fobs that display a new password every minute. If you don't have the key fob, you can't logon. But the computer was already infected and was being used by a legitimate user. Retina scanners would not have prevented the crime.

While the well-verified user was logged on, making legitimate transfers, the crimeware software generated 27 transfers in the space of a few minutes. According the firms president "They not only got into my system here, they were able to ascertain how much they could draw, so they drew the limit". It can't get any worse.

What to do?

Dancho Danchev suggests setting "daily, weekly or monthly account transaction limits", assuming your financial institution allows it. He also suggests being notified of transactions via SMS.

The Rise of Malware as a Service (MaaS)

February 18, 2013 · botnets, images, Security, Software

- authors Pierluigi Paganini

The Internet is becoming a mine for criminals that is an easy way to access to any kind of resources or to arrange a cyber attacks, a cyber espionage campaign or complex banking and identity fraud.

What is very frightening is the simplicity with which it is possible to acquire any kind of criminal services in the underground and the creativity of cyber criminals that are able to offer a business model that is both efficient and inexpensive. This is especially true of the Russian criminal underground which is the one that is considered the most active globally.

In the last month various malicious campaigns have been launched by cyber criminals with specific intent to infect the largest number of machines composing dangerous botnets. The availabilities of a great number of infected machines translates into the availability of valuable resources and services to be marketed by cybercrime organizations.

Cyber criminals are offering malware-infected-hosts, also known as "loads", in a new business model that proposes the monetization of botnet activities through renting of the compromised systems. Of course the services offered are totally customizable, clients can choose the type of malware that infects the victims and their geographic location, it is possible rent US-based malware infected hosts or machine in European Union.

Security expert Dancho Danchev in a post on Webroot threat blog revealed newly launched underground service offering access to thousands of malware-infected machine for unsettlingly low prices, a thousand US-based hosts costs $200 meanwhile for a thousand EU-based hosts price varies between $60/$120, and the price for a thousand international mix type of hosts is $20.

Profiling a Currently Active High-Profile Cybercriminals Portfolio of Ransomware-

Themed Extortion Email Addresses - Part Four (2022-02-26 22:32)

Dear blog readers,

Continuing the "[2]Profiling a Currently Active High-Profile Cybercriminals Portfolio of Ransomware-Themed Extortion Email Addresses - Part Three" blog posts series I've decided to share yet another currently active portfolio of ransomware themed email address accounts currently involved in a variety of campaigns.

Sample ransomware-themed personal email address accounts known to have been currently active and used in a variety of campaigns include:

[12]Quote: "The Mentally Ill or Disabled"

With few exceptions, material conditions in psychiatric hospitals and social care institutions for children and adults with developmental disabilities and mental illness were inhuman and degrading.

There were numerous cases of arbitrary detention of mentally ill people in social care institutions across the country in violation even of the Bulgarian procedure. In effect, this usually amounted to lifelong deprivation of liberty without any judicial control but with an agreement between the local social assistance department and the resident's guardians.

People continued to die as a result of bad living conditions and neglect. The BHC visits to several social care institutions revealed a very high mortality rate, with a peak in cold winter months. Death certificates were frequently found to be untrue, and were given to BHC monitors with reluctance, if at all. The prosecutor's offices did not charge a single person with negligence, in spite of numerous requests from the BHC.

In 2002, three years after the Varbanov v. Bulgaria decision by the European Court of Human Rights, no legislative changes were undertaken to bring domestic legislation on compulsory treatment in line the ECHR.

Placement in a psychiatric facility to establish the need for compulsory treatment was carried out with a prosecutor's order for a period of up to one month (or up to three months in exceptional circumstances) without a psychiatric examination prior to this order being made. The draft Public Healthcare Act provides a satisfactory resolution these problems, but it had not been passed by the end of the year.

The European Court of Human Rights heard two other cases concerning compulsory treatment in psychiatric hospitals: in the first case a violation of the right to personal liberty

security was established; the second case was declared admissible.

Detention in inpatient facilities for periods exceeding the legally determined period for expert assessment was commonplace, and constituted illegal deprivation of freedom. The registered cases of detention lasting months prior to a court hearing for compulsory treatment. "

Exposing the Conti Ransomware Gang - An OSINT Analysis (2022-02-28 01:47)

Awesome!

Based on the recently leaked internal communication of the infamous Russia based Conti ransomware gang in this post I'll provide actionable intelligence on the Conti ransomware gang in-depth and discuss and offer practical actionable intelligence on their Internet connected infrastructure in terms of providing Dark Web onion Web sites personal email address accounts IPs and command and control server IPs part of the gang's vast and vibrant Internet connected infrastructure with the idea to assist the U.S Intelligence Community and U.S Law Enforcement on its way to track down and prosecute the cybercriminals behind these malicious and fraudulent ransomware campaigns.

Conti ransomware gang's primary Dark Web Onion XMPP:

Your network has been infected by Avaddon

- What's the matter?

Your computer has been infected with Avaddon Ransomware. All your files have been encrypted and you are not able to to decrypt it by yourself. To decrypt your files you have to buy Avaddon Decryptor

- What can i do to get my files back ?

You should buy your software Avaddon Decryptor. It will scan your PC, network share, all connected devices and check for encrypted and decrypt it. Current price: 1000 USD. We accept cryptocurrency Bitcoin

-What guarantees can you give me ?

To be sure we have the decryptor and it works you can free decrypt and decrypt one file for free. But this file must be an image. because images usually are not valuable

Awesome!

Based on the recently leaked internal communication of the infamous Russia based Conti ransomware gang in this post I'll provide actionable intelligence on the Conti ransomware gang in-depth and discuss and offer practical actionable intelligence on their Internet connected infrastructure in terms of providing Dark Web onion Web sites personal email address accounts

IPs and command and control server IPs part of the gang's vast and vibrant Internet connected infrastructure with the idea to assist the U.S Intelligence Community and U.S Law Enforcement on its way to track down and prosecute the cybercriminals behind these malicious and fraudulent ransomware campaigns.

Conti ransomware gang's primary Dark Web Onion XMPP:

Exposing the Trickbot Malware Gang - An OSINT Analysis (2022-03-04 08:25)

[1]

Based on a yet [2]another recently leaked batch of internal Trickbot malware gang's communication channels I've decided to come up with a proper OSINT analysis on the topic and actually enrich and actually enrich the original information data set including to elaborate more and provide actionable intelligence on the online whereabouts of the Trickbot malware gang's Internet-connected infrastructure.

In this analysis I'll provide personally identifiable information on the Trickbot malware gang including actionable intelligence on their Internet-connected infrastructure.

Assessing the U.S Intelligence Community’s Annual Threat Report for 2022

In the most recently released "[2]U.S Intelligence Community's Annual Threat Report for 2022" the U.S Intelligence Community states that China remains the U.S's most sophisticated and relevant cyber adversary which possesses the necessary sophistication to target the country both using cyber espionage and attacks against U.S critical infrastructure.

An excerpt:

" We assess that China presents the broadest, most active, and persistent cyber espionage threat to U.S. Government and private sector networks. China's cyber pursuits and export of related technologies increase the threats of attacks against the U.S. homeland, suppression of U.S. web content that Beijing views as threatening to its control, and the expansion of technology-driven authoritarianism globally. "

The report actively discusses Iran, North Korea, China and Russia in a variety of dangerous aspects to U.S National Security with the report courtesy of the U.S Intelligence Community.

What the report also emphasizes on is the use of malicious influence both in the cyber domain and internationally where the U.S publicly acknowledges in its report that China is attempting to mimic Russia on its way to launch foreign influence operations serving the needs of China by using publicly disclosed training material and real-life case studies courtesy of Russia in terms of foreign influence operations which could set a dangerous precedent in case China fully realizes the vast potential of Russian’s capabilities in foreign influence operations that also includes the cyber domain on its way to dominate a country including the information and electromagnetic spectrum which also includes the launching of foreign influence campaigns both in real-life and virtually.

Israel Blocks Ukraine From Purchasing Pegasus Spyware (2022-03-24 01:14)

According to the [2]Guardian Israel blocked Ukraine from purchasing the Pegasus spyware from the infamous NSO Group vendor of lawful surveillance hacking tools. Not surprisingly this is a bit over-exaggerated and self-serving statement that actually does more PR harm other than good despite the fact that the article is mentioning Israel’s "[3]2007 Defense Export Control Act" which prevents the country from selling access to lawful surveillance type of hacking tools to other countries. Appreciate the rhetoric. Since when does a country that’s basically denying other countries the opportunity to buy commercial lawful surveillance hacking tools from them is positioning itself as as a market-leading provider of commercial lawful surveillance hacking tools? Basically never. Long story short any country that wants to monitor journalists or basically launch lawful surveillance campaigns using hacking tools against individuals can basically outsource the malicious software "know-how" to local companies that develop such type of tools.

Positioning yourself as a market and country-tolerated vendor of commercial and market leading lawful surveillance hacking tools is prone to result in negative publicity and basically turn and position the company as a mockery among hardcore vendors of commercial and lawful surveillance hacking tools that also includes the bad guys including other nations that develop and actually present such releases on the market.

U.S Army Launches the Cyber Military Intelligence Group (CMIG) (2022-03-24 01:16)

The U.S Army has recently [2]announced the development and public launch of the Cyber Military Intelligence Group (CMIG) which aims to use both proprietary sources including public sources on its way to build situational awareness in the world of cyber warfare and malicious and fraudulent adversaries.

An excerpt:

" The CMIG's function is to direct, synchronize and coordinate intelligence support to informa- tion advantage, cyberspace, information operations and electronic warfare operations. "

Possible use for the newly formed and developed U.S Army cyber military intelligence group could possibly include the use of public cyber threat intelligence sources which the group could use to further enrich and properly respond to both using public sources and proprietary and possibly sensitive and classified databases.

Courtesy of Republic of Bulgaria! - Part Four (2022-03-28 09:41)

For you there’s no such thing as a link you can click on? Guess what? I won’t tell you. Guess what again? The word is this - a basic link which you’re forbidden from clicking on it. It’s called the "[1]The Twilight Zone". Good luck in living there and don’t forget to spend the rest of your time watching the Outer Limits. You wish!

Profiling a Currently Active High-Profile Cybercriminals Portfolio of Ransomware-

Themed Extortion Email Addresses - Part Five (2022-03-28 18:13)

I’ve decided to continue the "[2]Profiling a Currently Active High-Profile Cybercriminals Portfolio of Ransomware-Themed Extortion Email Addresses - Part Four" blog post series and I’ve decided to issue yet another update in terms of currently active ransomware themed personal email address accounts.

Sample list of currently active ransomware themed email address accounts includes:
